

Introduction

▶ Play Video!

When you sign into Canvas you will be greeted by the Dashboard. The Dashboard is the hub which provides you access to your courses, upcoming assignments, and recent module/course feedback.

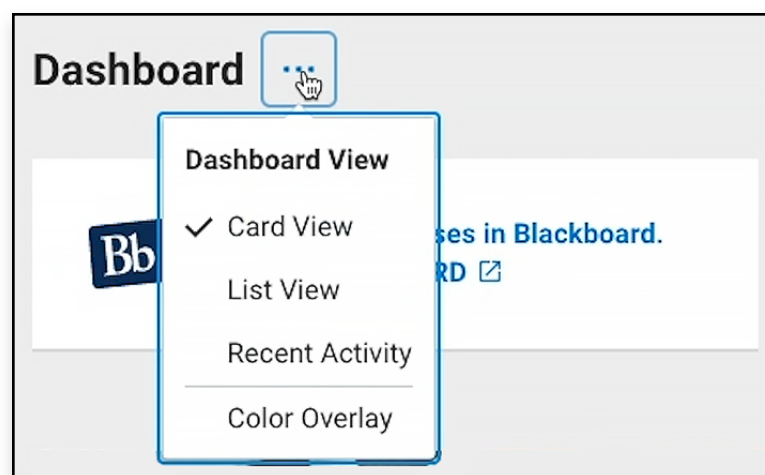

Note: The navigation for the Dashboard is different from the navigation for Courses. More to be covered on course navigation in the document: How to Navigate Courses in Canvas.

Dashboard View

Canvas is a customizable platform which allows you to control the view of your Dashboard. There are three ways to view your Dashboard (see below).

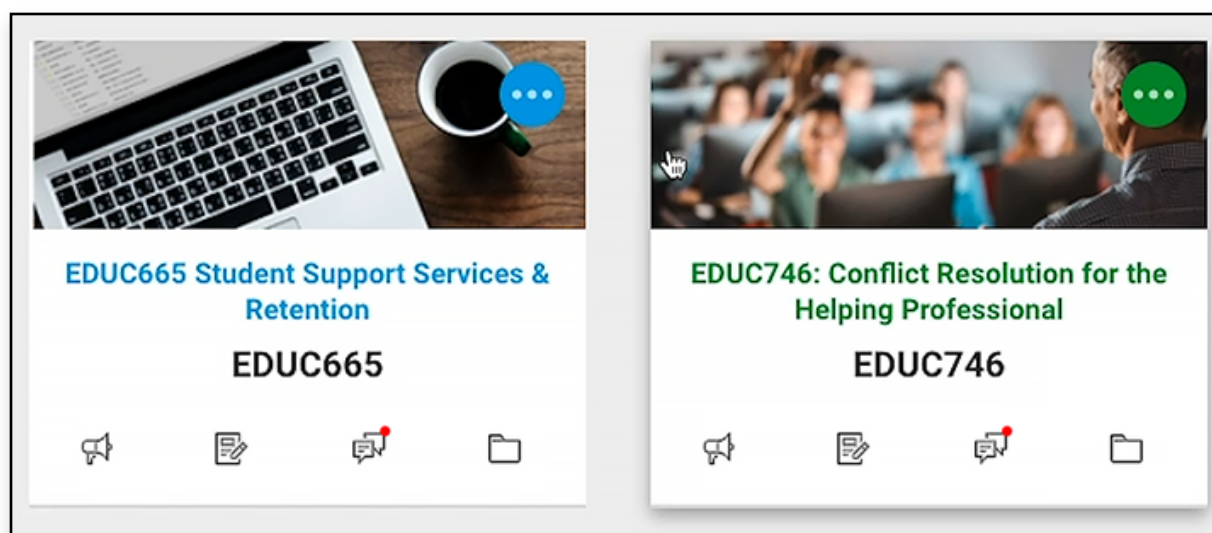

Note: For now, ignore the color overlay option as it does not pertain to a Dashboard view.

- Card View
- List View
- Recent Activity

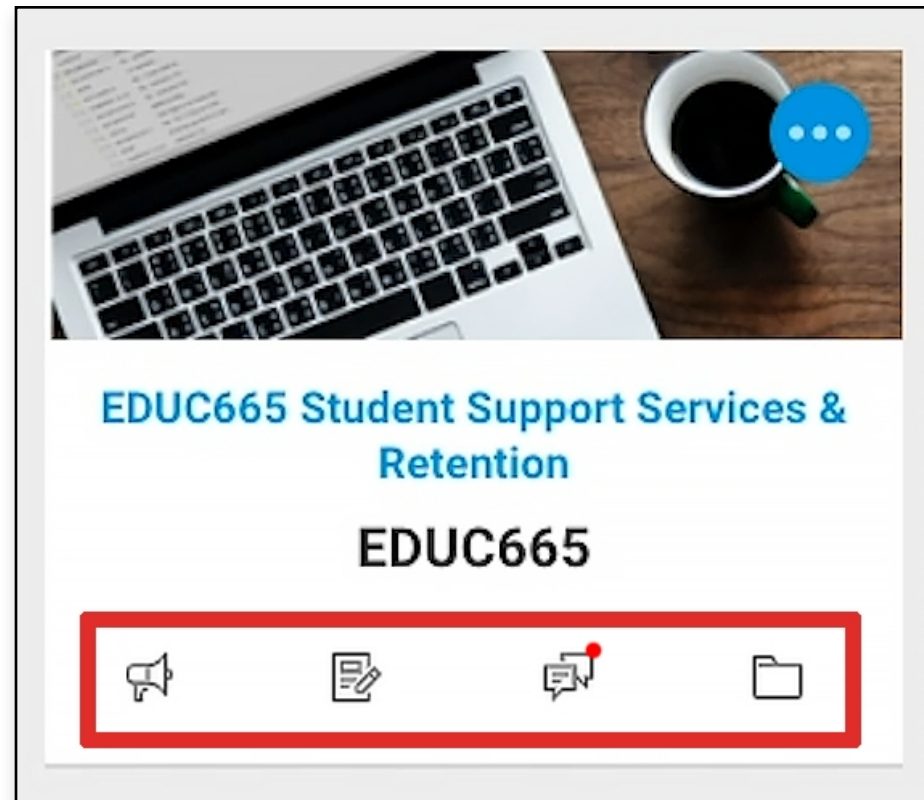

Card View

The default view is the Card view where your courses are represented by tiles. This is the recommended view for the dashboard as it separates each course into organized tiles, and provide easy access to notifications for announcements and links to course assignments, discussions, and files.

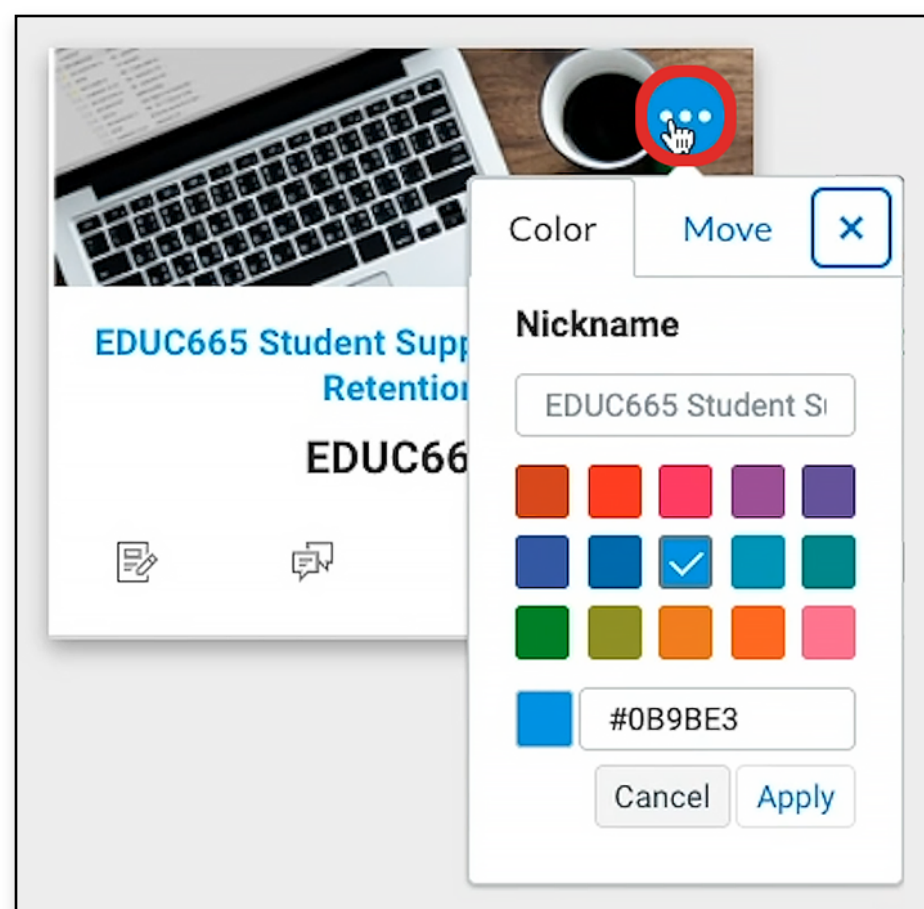

Card View (continued)

At the bottom of each course tile, there are quick access icons for Announcements, Assignments, Discussions, and Files.

You are able to customize the tile's color or move the tile by clicking on the three dots within the desired tile.

List View

In the List view, you can sort assignments and course activity by date.

Dr. Sparky Flames, Nathan Sutherland
EDUC746: Conflict Resolution for the Helping Professional

Hi Nate,

Absolutely! I can assist you in locating articles in the Jerry Falwell Library on the Roles and Definitions of Conflict Resolution. What days are available to video conference? I can share my screen and show you some good journals that will yield excellent scholarly articles for you.

Go Flames!

Dr. Flames,

I am having a hard time with journal critique #1. Can you help me locate an article on the roles and definitions of conflict resolution?

Thanks,

Nathan

Messages Received

The screenshot shows a 'COMPOSE MESSAGE' dialog box. The 'Course' is set to 'EDUC746: C... Ofessional'. The 'To' field contains 'Mark Leonard' and 'Brent Steele'. The 'Subject' is 'Do you guys understand the homework?'. There is an unchecked checkbox for 'Send an individual message to each recipient'. The message body contains the text: 'Hey Guys, I am having trouble with the homework for this week. What exactly are we supposed to do? Any help would be appreciated. Thanks! Nathan Sutherland'. At the bottom, there are 'CANCEL' and 'SEND' buttons.
